PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

Liam Turpin

Provisional Psychologist

Liam is a Provisional Psychologist who works with children, adolescents and adults, with a particular interest in supporting young people as they navigate emotional, behavioural and developmental challenges. He is passionate about helping clients develop practical coping strategies and achieve meaningful personal growth in a supportive and collaborative environment.

Liam completed his Honours in Psychology, with particular strengths in Psychopathology, Developmental Psychology, and Applied Child and Adolescent Psychology.

He is currently completing his Master of Clinical Psychology, further developing his clinical skills and expertise in evidence-based intervention across a broad range of mental health presentations. He is committed to ongoing professional development and providing high-quality psychological care.

Throughout his training and professional experience, Liam has worked in a variety of helping roles that reflect his genuine commitment to supporting others. He volunteers with Lifeline Australia, providing crisis support to individuals experiencing emotional distress and challenging life circumstances. These experiences have strengthened his empathy, communication skills and ability to build trusting therapeutic relationships.

Liam has also worked extensively with children and adolescents through coaching and mentoring roles, helping young people build confidence, resilience and social skills in engaging and supportive environments. His calm, approachable nature enables him to connect easily with clients of all ages, particularly children, adolescents and young adults.
