Lindsay Gibson

Speech Pathologist

Lindsay is a highly experienced Speech Pathologist with more than 20 years of experience supporting children to develop their communication, language and literacy skills. Originally trained as both a Speech Pathologist and Audiologist in South Africa, she spent 15 years working within school settings before relocating to Australia in 2016.

Lindsay works with preschool and school-aged children, providing comprehensive assessment and evidence-based intervention for a wide range of communication needs. She has experience supporting children with speech sound disorders, language delays, literacy difficulties, phonological awareness, stuttering, social communication differences, and developmental communication challenges.

She has completed specialist training in Sounds-Write, an evidence-based Systematic Synthetic Phonics program grounded in the Science of Reading. This expertise enables Lindsay to provide targeted intervention to support children's reading, spelling, written language and literacy development, helping them build the foundational skills required for academic success.

Lindsay is passionate about supporting autistic and neurodivergent children through neurodiversity-affirming, strengths-based practice. She values working collaboratively with families, educators and multidisciplinary teams to develop individualised strategies that enhance communication, learning, participation and confidence across home, school and community environments.

Known for her warm, engaging and compassionate approach, Lindsay builds strong therapeutic relationships with children and their families. She strives to create a supportive and enjoyable therapy environment where children feel empowered to develop new skills, celebrate their achievements, and reach their full potential.
